ABSTRACT

The annual statistical report is a compilation of the most recent statistical information on the Fund's 41 members. All of the member institutions are private, accredited, predominantly black colleges and universities; they comprise all of the institutions in that class in the United States except Hampton Institute and Meharry Medical College. Data were obtained from questionnaires sent annually to the members. Some data are expressed as indexes, with the base year 1960-70. The information, largely arranged in tabular form, include enrollment (graduate students, white students, male and female students, first-time freshmen, geographical distribution, and comparison with national private enrollments), degrees granted; faculty (totals, by degree, student-faculty ratio, and compensation); and institutional and student finance. INTRODUCTION

The United Negro College Fund's Annual Statistical Report is a compilation of the most recent statistical information on its forty-one member institutions. All of the member institutions are private, accredited, predominantly black colleges and universities. Thirty-nine of the member institutions offer baccalaureate degree programs while two (Atlanta University and the Interdenominational Theological Center) offer graduate degree studies exclusively. Several of the member institutions, including Fisk, Tuskegee and Xavier, offer graduate programs in addition to their undergraduate curricula.

The member colleges and universities of the United Negro College Fund comprise all of the private, fully-accredited, predominantly black colleges and universities in the nation except Hampton Institute and Meharry Medical College.

The forty-one UNCF member institutions have special significance because of their traditional and continuing role in educating minority group students for productive and creative participation in American life. During the past century, the private black colleges have provided education otherwise unavailable to thousands of able and deserving youths. The alumni of these institutions comprise most of the black leadership in America today.

Method:

The statistical information included was obtained from the UNCF questionnaires which are sent annually to each of the member institutions.

The data in this report are frequently expressed as index numbers usually with the year 1969-70 as the base. An index number expresses the percentage relationship between data for a given year and the corresponding data for the base year. The index numbers are determined from the "mean" or average data per institution. For example, if the average enrollment per institution was 1,000 in 1969-70 and 1,500 in 1975-76, then the index number would increase from 100 in 1969-70 to 150 in 1975-76, an increase of 50%.

There were a total of 36 UNCF institutions (34 undergraduate, two graduate) in 1969-70 and 41 UNCF institutions (39 undergraduate, two graduate) in 1974-75 and 1975-76. The averages and index numbers in the report reflect the differences in the number of member institutions in different years.

Enrollment data used in the report is based on the fall of each academic year to facilitate comparisons with other institutions.

Fall enrollment data excludes summer school students and students who did not enroll until the spring semester. Total enrollment at UNCF institutions, including summer school and additional spring semester students, is approximately 50,000 students.

Acknowledgements

Acknowledgement is gratefully given to Mr. Christopher F. Edley,

Executive Director of the Untied Negro College Fund, for his thoughtful interest and advice; to Mrs. Yvonne Parris for proofreading and typing the report; and to the numerous personnel at the member institutiors who responded to the UNCF Questionnaire.

ENROLLMENT

The ability to attract students is one of the most significant marks of a healthy college or university. Diversity in terms of geographic and racial mix are also significant factors. Conversely, declining enrollment is probably the most important indication of impending or actual distress. In this section we review trends in enrollment at the United Negro College Fund institutions from 1969 to 1976.

Fall 1976 Enrollment

Total enrollment at UNCF colleges and universities rose 7.5% between 1975 and 1976 - from 42,040 to 45,214.[1] The growth was pervasive, as more than three-quarters of the member institutions experienced enrollment increases (Table I).

UNCF enrollment exceeded the national percentage increase for private colleges and universities. Preliminary data released by the National Center for Education Statistics indicate that private college and university enrollments nationally increased 1.9% between fall 1975 and fall 1976, compared to the 7.5% increase reported by the private black colleges and universities comprising the United Negro College Fund.

UNCF and Private Undergraduate Enrollment Nationally

As shown in Table II, fall undergraduate enrollments at United Negro College Fund institutions rose 5% between 1969-70 and 1975-76.

[1] Total enrollment including summer school and additional spring semester students is approximately 50,000.

Compared to the slight (1%) decrease in undergraduate enrollments at private colleges and universities nationally, the increase in UNCF enrollments belies the often stated assumption that the utility of black colleges would diminish as black enrollment developed a more national pattern.

Graduate Student Enrollment

Enrollment of graduate students has increased 11% on UNCF campuses between 1969-70 and 1975-76. Atlanta University and Interdenominational Theological Center, UNCF's two graduate universities, experienced the largest increases (Table III).

White Students

The full-time enrollment of white students on UNCF campuses increased tenfold between 1969-70 and 1975-76. Only 37 white students were enrolled at UNCF institutions in the fall of 1969, compared with 399 in the fall of 1975 (Table IV). Special programs established to recruit white students accounted for much of the increase in white enrollment.

Male - Female

More women attend UNCF institutions than men, but the difference is narrowing. In 1969-70, 42% of the student population was male and 58% female. In 1975-76, 46% of UNCF students were male, 54% female (See Table V).

Freshmen

The number of freshmen students on UNCF campuses increased significantly between 1969 and 1976. First-time freshmen enrollment increased 6% during this period from a mean of 319/UNCF institution to a mean of 337/UNCF institution (Table VI). Total freshmen enrollment in the fall of 1976 was 13,153. The 6% increase suggests that UNCF institutions are doing better than private colleges nationally at attracting new students. First-time freshmen at private colleges nationally decreased 1% between 1969 and 1976.[1]

Geographical Distribution

UNCF institutions continue to undergird their traditional, national and international scope in terms of their student enrollments. While all but one of the institutions (Wilberforce) are located in the South and the majority of students enrolled are from the South, the number of students from outside of this region has increased 5% between 1969-70 and 1974-75 (Table VII).

Most of the increase in students from outside the deep and border South between 1969-70 and 1974-75 are from states as distant as California (which experienced an 80% increase in students attending UNCF institutions); Connecticut (with an 85% increase); Illinois (157%); and Michigan (84%). (See Tables IX and X for enrollment by state and by city.)

Foreign students who have for many years been attracted to UNCF schools, are accelerating their enrollment. In the past six years there has been a 20% increase in the enrollment of foreign students (Table VIII). In 1975-76, just over 2% of UNCF students were foreign.

DEGREES GRANTED

An analysis of the level and types of degrees awarded by UNCF institutions affords still another body of evidence of the kinds of education they now provide their students. Information about the degrees they award reveal more about their institutional purposes and services than the figures presented on enrollment, for degrees indicate the number of students who were actually successful in completing a full college program.

Undergraduate & Graduate Degrees

The number of earned academic degrees increased significantly in 1974-75 over the previous year and the base year, 1969-70 (Table XI). A total of 6,869 bachelor degrees were awarded in 1974-75 at UNCF institutions.

Earned graduate degrees increased 11% in 1974-75 over the previous year. In 1974-75, 753 graduate degrees were awarded compared to 676 in 1973-74. Two-thirds of the graduate degrees were awarded at the two UNCF graduate institutions, Atlanta University and Interdenominational Theological Center (Table XII).

Degrees Granted by Major

Table XIII presents the degrees awarded by fields of study at the forty-one UNCF member institutions. The most impressive finding was that UNCF institutions have diversified their curricula in the past several years to meet the newer distribution of professional job opportunities for blacks in the labor market.

More than 17% of the degrees earned were in business administration, roughly twice the percentage of graduates receiving business degrees in 1970. Fourteen UNCF institutions offered and awarded degrees in the health professions in 1974-75, compared to only two in 1969-70; three member colleges awarded degrees in computer science in 1974-75, while no UNCF colleges offered this major in 1969-70; two UNCF colleges have begun programs in communications during this period; and twenty-one UNCF colleges have established dual-degree engineering programs with cooperating engineering schools since 1966.[1] With the decline in the demand for teachers in recent years, the percentage of degrees in education has decreased from over 40% in 1969-70 to under 30% in 1974-75.

In sum, the private predominantly black colleges comprising the United Negro College Fund are gradually becoming more multipurpose institutions with enriched curricular offerings to strengthen their institutional programs. The additions and expansions in curricula are extending educational opportunity to thousands of individual students and are enhancing their potential contribution to American society.

Career Patterns

UNCF graduates in 1975 were more likely to aspire toward careers in business, communications, law, social work and politics than their counterparts in 1970, and slightly less likely to choose careers in education and the armed forces (Table XIV).

Approximately 25% of the 1975 graduating seniors attending UNCF institutions were admitted to graduate and professional schools. It is estimated that at least an equal number of graduates decide to pursue advanced degrees after they graduate, but work for a year or more for financial or other reasons. Within five years after graduation, approximately 50% of UNCF graduates earn advanced degrees.

THE FACULTY

The private predominantly black colleges and universities within the United Negro College Fund are essentially teaching institutions as opposed to research institutions. In particular, their primary services are related to the teaching of undergraduate students. In this chapter we analyze the faculties in terms of their degrees held, their racial composition, their compensation, and their number relative to students.

Total Faculty

The mean number of faculty (full-time equivalent) per institution increased 2.4% in 1974-75 over the previous year, from 71.6 per institution to 73.3 per institution (Table XV). The increase in faculty kept pace with the 2.8% enrollment increase during the period. Approximately two-thirds of the faculty were black; and one-third white and "other."

Faculty by Degree

The percentage of faculty members at four-year colleges nationally having Ph.D degrees was 37% according to the most recent U.S. Office of Education statistics.[1] In comparison, more than two out of five faculty at UNCF institutions (40.6%) hold Ph.D's (Table XV). Excluding UNCF's two graduate institutions, 38.8% of the faculty held Ph.D's; still 1.8% greater than at four-year colleges nationally.

Between 1973-74 and 1974-75 the percentage of faculty with Ph.D's on UNCF campuses increased 7.2% from 37.5% to 40.6%. More than one-third (34.1%) of the faculty members are nonblack.

Student-Faculty Ratio

The ratio of students to faculty is significantly more generous at UNCF institutions than at private colleges and universities nationally. In 1974-75 the ratio on UNCF campuses was roughly 14:1, compared to more than 16:1 in the private higher education sector nationally.

[1] The Condition of Education, National Center for Education Statistics, 1975, p. 115.

In summary, UNCF faculties are providing a product to their students which is somewhat different from that provided by most other faculties. The more generous student-faculty ratio at UNCF institutions provides students with a greater opportunity to see educated adults up close. The larger percentage of faculty with Ph.D's is particularly unusual for smaller colleges such as those within UNCF. Whatever kind of education is being provided, it is likely that for certain kinds of young people at UNCF institutions and elsewhere it may be more constructive and helpful for them to have close, personal contact with highly qualified teachers, than exposure to professors holding forth in a lecture hall with fifty or more students.

Faculty Compensation

One of the most critical problems facing UNCF institutions is the generally low level of their salaries. The greatest salary difference between UNCF institutions and the total collegiate sector occurs in the higher ranks. As Table XVII indicates, full professors at UNCF institutions earned an average of over $7,200 less in 1974-75 than their counterparts nationally; associate professors earned an average of over $3,900 less than their counterparts; assistant professors earned over $2,600 less; and instructors earned almost $1,700 less.

Between 1972-73 and 1974-75 the salaries of faculty at UNCF institutions lost ground relative to faculty salaries nationally. The average salary increase for the two-year period at UNCF institutions was 9.2% for all ranks, compared to 10.9% for all ranks of faculty nationally.

Real earnings of both UNCF faculty and faculty nationally declined between 1972-73 and 1974-75. The consumer price index rose 20.1% during this period, compared to the average 9.2 and 10.9 percent increases for UNCF and national faculties.

INSTITUTIONAL AND STUDENT FINANCES

In this chapter we bring together several topics bearing on the financial position of UNCF students and institutions. These include operating revenues and expenditures, endowment, financial aid to undergraduate students, student charges, and parental income.

Operating Revenues and Expenditures

Revenues are the monies available to pay for current institutional operations, and expenditures are those funds used to support academic instruction, administration, student aid, building maintenance, etc. In this section data is presented on revenues and expenditures over the period 1971-72 through 1974-75.

Between 1971-72 and 1974-75 there was a 32.0% increase in total revenues at UNCF institutions. During the same period, however, expenditures increased 37.3% with the net result being that expenditures increased at a faster rate than income received by the schools.

[2]Institutions where expenditures exceeded revenues.

Revenues per student increased 28.3% between 1971-72 and 1974-75, but expenditures per student increased 33.3% during the same period. Thus, the growth in revenues per student did not keep pace with increased expenditures.

Revenues and expenditures per student were roughly equal in 1974-75. This situation allows little room for substantial improvements in educational quality and faculty salary increases beyond cost of living adjustments. Additional revenues must be generated beyond existing increases to meet these costs.

TABLE XIX

Revenues and Expenditures Per Student
UNCF Institutions[1]

	1971-72	1974-75	% Change
Revenues Per Student	$3,675	$4,710	+ 28.2%
Expenditures Per Student	3,531	4,708	+ 33.3%

[1]Based on 34 of the 41 member institutions.

Since 1971-72, the budgetary situation as measured by deficits has, on the whole, declined. Only 24% of UNCF institutions experienced budget deficits in 1971-72 compared to 49% in 1974-75.

In 1974-75, twenty or roughly half of all UNCF institutions experienced budget deficits. Current expenditures exceeded current revenues by a net total of $377,699.

The real issue for these colleges and universities is whether they will be able to find resources in amounts that keep pace with rising costs, new program development and salary improvements. Further increases in tuition would discourage and deprive large numbers of UNCF students from attending college (see page 35 for parental income of UNCF students). Cutting costs below already low levels could seriously diminish the attractiveness and effectiveness of the colleges. The situation suggests a clear need for additional capital in order to meet rising costs, and gives impetus to UNCF's planned capital fund drive.

Endowment

The median endowment at UNCF institutions increased 44.9% from 1971 through 1974; but in 1975 the median endowment decreased 5.0% from the previous year. In 1975, the median endowment was $891,952 (Table XXI).

The $2,412,134 mean or average endowment at UNCF institutions was less than half the $5,414,867 average for private colleges nationally in 1975.[1] Excluding UNCF's two graduate institutions, the mean endowment was $2,000,266, 36.9% of the mean for private colleges nationally.

Parental Income

Almost half of UNCF undergraduate students came from families whose total annual incomes were less than $5,000 in 1975. More than four out of five UNCF undergraduate students fell into the under $10,000 per year category of annual family income, while only 2% came from families with incomes over $20,000 per year. Nationally, fewer than one out of five private college students came from families earning less than $10,000 per year, and 45% came from families earning over $20,000 per year in 1975.[1]

Average Charges to Students

The average tuition at UNCF institutions in 1975-76 was roughly two-thirds the national average for private, four-year colleges, and room and board was approximately 85% of the national mean.

With books and supplies included, the total average cost of attending a UNCF college in 1975-76 was $2,703. UNCF institutions would have to raise their tuitions over $750 and their room and board charges almost $200 to meet the averages for private colleges nationally. Since the vast majority of UNCF students come from low-income families and require financial aid to attend college, the results of any cost increases could prove tragic for substantial numbers of these students.

Student Financial Aid

The number and percentage of UNCF students receiving financial aid has increased steadily since the earliest available records in 1958-59. More than four out of five UNCF students received financial aid in 1974-75, a 10.9% increase over the previous year and a 40.4% increase over 1958-59.

Financial aid expenditures at UNCF institutions have increased dramatically to meet the needs of the increasingly larger group of UNCF students requiring financial assistance to attend college. Between 1971-72 and 1974-75 there was a 45.4% increase in the mean financial aid expenditures. The availability of financial aid resources becomes increasingly critical as larger and disproportionate numbers and percentages of students attending UNCF schools require financial assistance.

UNCF Campus Campaigns

Since UNCF does not collect giving information by race, one of the most significant indicators of black giving to the College Fund is the UNCF campus campaign. In 1975 the faculties at UNCF institutions contributed $155,171, a 23% increase over the previous year. UNCF students in 1975 raised a total of $137,008 for a 25% increase over 1974 (Table XXVIII). The total amount raised by UNCF students and faculties accounted for 2.4% of the total raised by UNCF from all sources in the 1975 campaign.

Alumni Giving

Contributions from alumni have increased dramatically at UNCF institutions. Between 1973-74 and 1974-75 contributions rose 37.2%; and from 1968-69 to 1974-75 contributions rose 94%. Such a substantial increase appears to indicate a greater commitment on the part of alumni toward maintaining and strengthening the quality of education at their alma maters.
